PASSENGERS AND CREW BATTLING WATERS OF LAKE

All But 17 of 60 of Steamer "Wisconsin" Are Saved

LIFE-BOATS TIP OVER

Ship Founders in Most Severe Lake Storm in Many Years

CHICAGO, Oct. 29—(INS)—Searching coast guard crews have picked up all but seventeen men of the sixty who left the steamer Wisconsin as it foundered and sank early today in Lake Michigan off the Kenosha, Wis., Harbor in one of the worst storms that has swept the lake in recent years.

All wore life-belts and were able to remain afloat as the small boats battled the waves, searching for the floating figures.

Capt. Douglas Morrison was one of the seventeen men who was thrown into the water when the ship filled and sank. Many of the survivors are in critical condition due to exposure in the cold water and biting wind.

"There are at least two boat loads gone. That I know. I saw them tipped over and thrown into the water," was the statement made by Fred Trauver, lookout man on the Wisconsin, who was the first survivor of the wreck to be brought into Kenosha this morning. Trauver was one of about twenty men who came off the ship in the first boat to be launched. It crashed against the side of the ship and sank.

"I can swim fairly well but the cold was bitter and the battering of the waves weakened me fast. I grabbed hold of a bit of wreckage and hung on.

"While I was holding there two other boats came over the side and tipped over. Some of the boys struggled in the water, but others just threw up their hands and went down. I think the coast guards got some of them."

The Wisconsin first called for help at 2 a. m. This was followed by repeated calls for assistance and S.O.S. messages which were answered by the Illinois and the Butterfield.

The ship, crippled by the waves' buffeting, fought its way to within four miles of the Kenosha Harbor when the water reached the fire hold and extinguished the boilers. Without steam, the freighter lay helplessly in the troughs of the waves.

PLANE TALK

By HARRY A. SUTTON
Of the Technical Staff,
The Aviation Corporation
(Written Expressly for International News Service)

1—THEORY OF FLIGHT

An airplane flies for the same reason that a kite stays aloft in a breeze. With the kite, it is the air's motion which sustains it while the plane is supported because of its own movement through the atmosphere. Set at a slight angle to the direction of flight (angle of attack), its wings, drawn along swiftly by the propellor, ride on the pressure of the air as an aquaplane on the surface of the water.

A plane must attain a certain speed before the air pressure becomes sufficient to lift and sustain it. This speed (flying speed) depends on the wing contour and on the angle of attack and is effective entirely in its relation to the air. A plane may maintain flying speed of 80 miles an hour into a 40-mile wind, for instance, and yet pass over the ground at only 40 miles an hour, half its flying speed.

Modern planes utilize a single wing (monoplane) or a double wing (biplane), set one above the other. Triple wings (triplanes) are now seldom employed. With biplanes, the upper wing is usually set a little forward of the lower wing (positive stagger) because the air's lifting action is greatest when the airfoils are so arranged.

(Tomorrow's article of PLANE TALK will deal with plane structure.)

BUCKS CO. RECEIVES W. C. T. U. HONORS

Delegates to State Convention Return With Prizes and Awards

The eleven delegates from Bucks County who travelled in a special car across the state to Warren, to the state convention of the W. C. T. U., brought back several honors to the county, along with $52.50 in checks.

Frederick Ort, of Quakertown, won the second prize in essay work in junior-senior high school; Edith Cornell, of Richboro, first award in poster work; Mrs. Laura Thomen, Richboro, for humane educational work; Southampton W. C. T. U., was given $5 for increase in membership, and Churchville, Newtown, Makefield, Yardley, Wrightstown and Warrington each won $5 for the standard of excellence.

Erie county, the hostess county, received first prize for publicity work, with honorable mention for Bucks. Honors also came to the Y. P. B's.

"Seventy-two times as much money is spent in America for tobacco as is received by all combined churches" said Mr. Finnell, of the No-Tobacco League.

Six thousand young people between the ages of 14 and 30 years have signed "Youth's Roll Call", which will be presented to President Hoover to prove to him that the young folks believe in his law enforcement program. "That the women of Pennsylvania are determined that the Keystone state shall stand back of the President in his enforcement program, is evidenced by the increase in membership and splendid financial reports for the year" said the treasurer, Mrs. Ella B. Black, who was elected to succeed Dr. Ella M. George, who has efficiently served for 22 years as president, and refused re-election.

Mrs. George in her annual address told of the steady growth in sentiment which believes in total abstinance for the individual and prohibition for the world. "Twenty-two years ago" said Mrs. George, "only a few counties were organized. Today every county in the state is listed in the W. C. T. U. At that time our membership was 17,821, now it is 44,867. Twenty-two years ago only Green county was dry, when national prohibition became the law, 17 counties were on the dry list. This change has been made through educational work."

Demonstrations were given by the majority of the 21 departments of work. One of the closing sentiments of the convention given in unison was "A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, and it will not break where I stand".

Uniontown, Fayette county, will entertain the 1930 convention.

LANGHORNE'S MANY NAMES AND PROGRESS OF THAT BOROUGH SINCE LATTER PART OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY TOLD OF IN SUNDAY TIMES-ADVERTISER

Present Name from Thomas Langhorne, Eminent Preacher, Who in 1684 Established A Country Seat of Many Acres at Langhorne Park

The following account of the progress of Langhorne Borough as printed in the anniversary edition of the Trenton Times-Advertiser of October 27th, is of great interest to residents of this section.

LANGHORNE, Oct. 28—The intersection of the Durham Road with the road from Philadelphia to Trenton proved a likely place for settlement to the founders of "Four Lanes End," now Langhorne. This point was an important station on the Tally-ho route from Philadelphia to New York.

Langhorne also had another alias, this being Attleborough, taking this name when a post office was established in 1809. The Bound Brook Railroad was indirectly responsible for the present name, for when it placed a station here in 1877 under the name of Langhorne, the name from then on applied to the town, also. The village had previously been incorporated in 1874 through the efforts of Dr. James Bentley Candy, one of the borough fathers.

Langhorne's name is taken from Thomas Langhorne, eminent preacher from England who, in 1684, established a country seat in 864 acres at which is known as Langhorne Park and built a mansion known as Langhorne Manor near Galloway's Ford on Neshaminy Creek. The place was located near the present residence of Senator Clarence Buckman.

Settlers here being mostly Quakers, a Friends' meeting house was erected in 1689 on mile west of Langhorne but was later destroyed by fire. In 1718 another was built and during the Revolution was used as a hospital. It was rebuilt in 1793.

Gilbert Hicks, an ardent Tory and then High Sheriff of the county in 1776, made a hasty retreat to Nova Scotia when he proclaimed the opening of court at the court house at Newtown in the name of the King after the Declaration of Independence had been signed. Patriotic citizens were highly offended by his British loyalty and at the first day of court session Hicks decided to remain at home. The crowd became infuriated and marched to Newtown. A slave of Hicks warned of the approaching patriots and the Sheriff beat a hasty retreat. Horsemen set out in pursuit but were unable to overtake him. Later he was rewarded by the King of England with a tract of land and an annual pension.

The present hotel formerly a small hip-roofed brick and stone structure with a log kitchen attached, was built by the Vanhornes, and it was here in 1732 that the first store was opened by Joseph Richardson. The hotel proved more popular with the coaches, being "breakfast distance" from Philadelphia..

The house which now shelters the Jesse W. Soby Post, American Legion, a memorial gift from the community, was honored by General Lafayette's presence when he was en route to the soldiers' hospital.

The "Bellevue" (now Veil Maternity Hospital) was built by Middletown Boarding School Association in 1835. It was later acquired by the Mann's School for Boys, and in 1868 a girls' school was conducted there. At this time it was renamed "Bellevue."

Langhorne has recently built a new High and grammar school to accommodate its increasing population. The Molly Wood School for exceptional children, comprising three estates is one of the largest and most beautifully equipped schools and is known for its noteworthy work.

George C. Mather is the present Chief Burgess; Pierson M. Candy is the fire chief of Langhorne Company, No. 1, with Harvey G. Wells, assistant fire chief. Members of the council are: Frank C. Osmond, president; Frank R. Mitchell, secretary; Edward Palmer, treasurer; Frank C. Cornell, street commissioner. Arthur P. Townsend, Joseph Palmer and William W. Marple are also members of council.

Mabel B. Varian is secretary of the school directors, who are J. Russell Newbold, Joseph C. Davenport, Harry P. Rotherwell, Hannah G. C. Pickering and Walter S. Miller.

Dr. Samuel L. Ridge heads the Board of Health, Frederick B. Tomlinson is the justice of the peace, and Samuel G. Clark is constable.

LIVESTOCK AND BARN DESTROYED IN $10,000 FIRE

Serious Blaze Occurs at Finney Farm, Holland; Heat Intense

FIREMEN ARE KEPT BUSY

End of Three-Story Frame House Also Burned To Ground

Fire last night totally destroyed a large barn, out-buildings, two horses, one cow, four pigs, 100 chickens, farm machinery and burned the entire roof off a brick dwelling and totally destroyed a three-story frame end of the house on the farm of Nathan Finney, Holland, near St. Leonard Station. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

The property was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. James Tyson. Tyson collapsed and was taken in care by neighbors. He was removed from the farm and firemen are guarding the furniture which was saved.

The blaze was first discovered shortly after 10 o'clock, last night, and firemen were summoned from Newtown, Richboro and Southampton. The flames gained such rapid headway that the efforts of the firemen to halt their progress was almost hopeless.

The farm is located near Newtown and was the scene of barbarous murder of the late Samuel Wrightly and wife, 35 years ago, by an Indian farm hand, named Wallace Burt.

Burt murdered both his employer and his wife and then laid the bodies on a bed and set a lighted lamp beneath the bed, thinking that the property would be destroyed and also all evidence of his crime. The crime was discovered, however, and Burt was convicted of the crime and went to the gallows.

The two-story frame dwelling occupied by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Yeager, on the Lincoln Highway, between Morrisville and Fallsington, was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. The family of five fled to the street. The house was 150 years old.

Mrs. Yeager was awakened by smoke and found the first floor ablaze. She aroused the other members of the family. Morrisville firemen responded to the alarm. The house was occupied in 1848 by Mahlon Moon, who established the Moon Nurseries.

Prizes were given for several games played and the first prize for finding the most peanuts in the peanut hunt, was given to Betty Lovett, while the booby prize went to Ruth Hetherington for finding the least number of peanuts.

A large tub filled with water and apples, created lots of fun for the guests, when each one took their turn and tried to take a large bite out of an apple with their hands tied behind them. The prize for this game was given to Margaret Brownlee.

Prizes were also given for some of the costumes. Margaret Brownlee received the prize for fancy dress and Lucille Montague, was awarded the prize for comic dress.

The dining room was beautifully decorated in the Hallowe'en colors, orange and black and orange color plates were at each place on the table, with napkins to match. A large basket of fruit stood in the center of the table and each guest received as favors, orange colored baskets trimmed with black cats, filled with candy and an orange hat with a black feather in it. After enjoying a lot of goodies the children departed for their homes. Those present were: Mary, Rita and Elizabeth Quigley, Janice Singer, Ellen Gallagher, Ruth Jeffries, Betty Lovet,t Margaret Phipps, Lucile Montague, Ruth Hetherington and Margaret Brownlee.

SUBSIDIZED FOOTBALL

A new issue of far more importance, suddenly forced upon the public attention, could not have stirred up more discussion than the report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching on its survey of commercialism in collegiate football.

From the attention given the report it might be assumed, by those unaware of the true state of affairs, that it revealed the hitherto unknown. It is a fact that the information concentrated in this report has been universally known for years and has been the theme of more editorials, newspaper features and college chapel lectures than any other single subject in this generation.

Why all this fuss over the injection of professionalism in what is supposed to be an amateur sport? College spirit has not waned, college athletics have waxed strong and prosperous, and the game of football has never been played so well. Salaried players fill more stadiums than the mythical elevens of heroic and idolized Dick Darewells filled benches.

How are we to reconcile the claims of colleges and universities to higher entrance requirements and scholastic ratings with the protests of the super-amateurists that overemphasis of football is undermining our institutions of higher learning from an academic standpoint?

The important thing is to have a single standard of football ethics for all schools, rather than any particular standard.

Let it be said in simple justice to the big schools, which seem to be lavishing the largest sums on the gridiron, that their brand of commercialism is hardly more reprehensible than that of the small school which, with a large guarantee as a stake, sends a light unsubsidized team against a heavy eleven of paid athletes.

GUILTY—BUT OF WHAT!

Arthur Garfield Hayes, liberal New York lawyer and champion of the under-dog, predicted the conviction of the seven professed communists tried for the killing of Chief of Police Aderholt, of Gastonia, N. C. But he qualified his prophecy. He said they would be found guilty not because they were murderers but because they were communists.

True to the lawyer's prophecy all seven were convicted of second-degree murder and were given prison sentences ranging from five to 17 years.

On its face the jury's verdict was "guilty of murder," but, just as in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, many persons will never be convinced that the real verdict was not "guilty of belief in communism." The thought will not down, with some, that Fred Beal and his associates would have been freed had they been Southern Democrats.

North Carolina justice can answer the question. There is another case now inpending in which the circumstances are reversed. If the anti-communists, who slaughtered Ella May Wiggins, communist, go free, the reason for the conviction of the others will be perfectly obvious.

Some drive while intoxicated and some drive like that because they were born that way.

Americans don't appreciate what they have? Well, ankles were more thrilling when you saw fewer.

GUARANTEED Ford used cars

USED CARS

of many makes are traded in for the new Ford

SOME people think we accept nothing but used Fords for trade-ins when selling the Model A. That is a wrong impression. Cars of many makes are traded in for the new Ford—some low priced and some not so low—and many of them are unusual bargains in unused transportation.

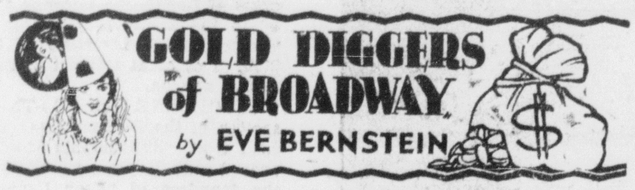

There is a definite reason why we can offer you extra value in these used cars. The value of the new Ford is so high, and the cost so low, that excessive trade-in concessions on buyers' used cars are not possible. In other words, we set the trade-in figure at just what the used car is worth.

This means that when we offer a used car for sale, there is no "padding" the price to take care of an unreasonable trade-in allowance. Our used-car department is based on a spirit of fair-dealing . . . fair-dealing with the first owner who makes the trade-in, and the second owner who buys the unused mileage.

Model T Fords are reconditioned, and carry a guarantee. Other makes are priced strictly according to the unused transportation in them. Come in today and see some of the bargains we are in a position to offer. For example:

SYNOPSIS

Violet, a chorus girl, and her fiance, Wally, enlist the aid of Jerry, understudy to the star, in getting the consent of Wally's uncle to their marriage. Jerry allows Uncle Steve to mistake her for Violet, and assumes the role of a scheming woman so that he will be happy to let someone else marry his nephew. Jim Blake, Steve's lawyer, suggests that they take Jerry out, to get acquainted before making a final decision, and Jerry's friend, Mabel, comes along. The gold-digging starts, and is brought to a climax two weeks later by a party for Jerry which Steve is to pay for. Jerry, still trying to shock Steve, makes him give her a hundred dollars to make a bet with Barney.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

She led him the dining room where the event was to take place.

"Here's the money, Barney," Jerry called.

Steve could not help stealing a look at Blake whose face told him plainly what a fool he was. Of course, it was obvious to Jim who had put up the money for Jerry.

"I'll hold the stakes," offered Mabel.

"We don't trust you. Here Violet, you keep them," Jerry said. Barney followed suit and gave his to Vicie, too, and taking a plate

"Oh, Wally, I'm giving out! No matter what I do he won't be shocked" from the table, he took his position, holding te well over Jerry's head.

"Let's go," he called.

"You're cheating. That's too high," Jerry objected.

"It was the bargain, above the head," put in Barney.

"All right then," Jerry consented. "Ready!"

She gave the plate a kick that sent it flying from Barney's hand and made it land on the floor in a thousand pieces. The guests yelled their approval, while Uncle Steve applauded quietly. Barney took the money from Violet with a profound bow and turned it over to Jerry. When the group began to break up, Jerry, with the money in her hand, confronted Uncle Steve.

"You don't want that hundred back, do you, Uncle Steve? You got your money's worth by picking a winner."

Lee sighed audibly, and murmured:

"All right then. Keep it."

"I deserved it anyway. Jerry went on to apologize. "That was a real kick, don't you think so?"

"Indeed it was!"

"Barney was a peach to lose so good naturedly," she said thoughtfully, while Steve wondered whether or not she ever even gave the question of his putting up all that money a single thought.

"Shall we finish this dance?" Lee suggested.

Jerry had believed almost that he would not even care to talk to her after this last little gold-digging, but here he was asking her to dance. She took his proffered arm and accompanied him to the dance hall where their bodies swung in rhythm to a dreamy waltz. The pleasure she experienced in dancing with him was comparable only to his joy in dancing with her.

After several encores, they started going towards the lounging room. Eleanor who was just coming out insisted that Lee have the next dance with her, and spirited him away as soon as the music started again. Jerry, meanwhile, took advantage of the occasion to talk to Wally who was sitting alone waiting for Violet who was dancing with someone else.

"Oh, Wally, I'm giving out," Jerry complained. "I don't know what to do next."

"I too am afraid we're licked. The plan isn't working."

"I never saw a man change the way your Uncle has. No matter what I do, he simply won't be shocked. The tougher and dizzier I act, the better he seems to like me."

"And poor Vi hasn't made any impression on him at all," Wally added.

"He's as fresh as a daisy, and I'm exhausted. This night life is too much for me, but it seems to agree with your uncle. Maybe his age has something to do with it. I don't know how much longer I can keep up the pace."

She sat down near Wally, resting her head on her hand.

"Oh—for some sleep!"

"We can't give up hope now, Jerry. Maybe something will turn up"

"I should say we can't," she agreed. "The party is far from over yet. I'll think of something—find some way to convince him that I am a poisonous creature who will ruin you as sure as you're alive."

"Jerry, you're a peach. I don't know how to thank you for all you've done. I know it hasn't been easy."

"Just forget it, and let's co-operate to bring this thing to a knock-out finale."

"Vi is just too discouraged for words," Wally went on, when Topsy and Eleanor appeared at the entrance and motioned to them to come out.

"The Collins is passe out," Eleanor said when the two had joined them.

"Yep, she folded up like a tent," Topsy added.

"What's wrong with her?" Wally wanted to know.

"She collapsed," explained Topsy, "from drinking too much buttermilk."

Wally and Jerry followed the girls out to the dining room where a large group had gathered around Ann Collins' place at the table. Somebody was fanning her, and someone else was sprinkling water on her face, and she lay, quite unconscious, sprawled over her chair.

"Ah me! She was always quite ill-bred," Eleanor remarked.

"Nobody can drink sheep dip without cracking under the strain," put in Topsy.

Barney suggested that they carry her out, whereupon he and her escort lifted her up and took her outside for some air. When she had revived somewhat, the gentleman she came with, himself a little warm and dizzy from what he had drunk, called a cab and took her home.

The party was getting subdued now, and nearly everyone was sick of dancing. Wally and Violet were sitting together disconsolately, and Jerry felt she was too worn out to continue her acting any longer. Only Mabel kept up her vivacity, and succeeded in wearing out poor Jim Blake by making him dance with her innumerable times. Uncle Steve too, looking as fresh as he did when the party began, watched everything with a glint of amusement in his eyes, and remained close to Jerry. Eleanor and Topsy, unsuccessful with their respective escorts, tried to decide between them who had made the worst choice, but at last they came to the conclusion that it was an even break. It was becoming clear to Jerry that the party had died, and it was up to her to suggest something to bring it to life. Of course, it would have been ridiculous to call it an evening, when nothing definite had happened as far as Steve was concerned, and Wally and Violet were just where they were in the beginning. She must stretch out the evening somehow. After a few moments' thought, she stopped the music to make an announcement.

"I'm tired of this place,—are you, folks?"

There was a shout of assent.

"How would you like to go over to my house—and play post office?"

"O. K.—great!" she heard over the dining room.

"Then it's settled! Get ready for another party!"

Mabel seized Blake about his ample waist and whirled him around the room until he was giddy, singing:

"Goody-goody-goody!
We're going some place else,
We're going some place else."

He was finally able to shake himself free of her and sit down to rest his unsteady head on his arm.

"Did I may my sweetums sick?" she said, sitting down on his knee.

"Just dizzy. Say, don't you ever get tired?"

"Not when I'm with you, honey bunch."

"Perhaps a rest occasionally would do you good."

"We're going some place else—we're going some place else—" she sang in a different key, trying to make him get up to dance around with her again, but this time he was firm in his resolution to remain quiet for a while. Even if he had wanted to get up, he would have found it difficult. He had, after all, considerable weight to carry around. Unable to move him, Mabel danced by herself and whirled around until he thought she must drop from exhaustion.

Eleanor and Topsy, arm in arm, began walking towards the dressing room for their wraps.

RUSSIA UNDER WET RULE

With their new government-controlled liquor industry, Russians last year spent $500,000,000 for vodka, containing 40 per cent of alcohol. This is a 50-fold increase since 1924 and represents more than the total invested last year in building up Russian industries, carrying out the vast electrification program and in social work. And this amount of vodka was only one-fifth of the total quantity consumed, it is estimated. A bottle of it costs the equivalent of 50 cents, which is too much for peasants to pay, so they make and drink five times as much of the home-brewed product. Two proved false claims of the wets is that Prohibition increases the consumption of liquor and the production of home-brew.—Capper's Weekly.—(Adv.)

EDDINGTON DEFEATS TRIPLE X OF FRANKFORD

(By T. M. Juno)

Eddington A. A. continued its good work on the gridiron by winning from the Triple X eleven of Frankford by the count of 13-6.

It was the same period that won the game for the locals last week that all the points were scored. In that lucky third period the Eddington boys scored twice. Earle caught a forward from "Bud" David and raced fifteen yards for a counter, and then later on Kelly intercepted a pass on the ten yard line and crossed the goal line. Corrigan was successful in his kick for the extra point.

In the first period the visitors scored a fluke six-pointer. Corrigan punted high in the air and the wind carried the pigskin beyond the goal posts where Wallace recovered for a touchdown. The try for an extra point failed.

Eddington	position	Triple X
Roberts	left guard	Daniels
Scott	center	Smiler
Brennan	right guard	Krause
Rimpf	right tackle	Mahle
Van Sant	right end	Wilson
Keller	quarterback	Wallace
Hope	right halfback	Snyder
Metcalf	fullback	Smith

Score by quarters:

Eddington	0	0	13	0—13
Triple X	6	0	0	0— 6

Substitutes: For Triple X—Dodge for Daniels, Jeane for Smiler, Sanpa for Smith, Caple for Mahle. For Eddington—Whitaker for Blakerson, B. David for Metcalf, Early for Griffiths, Trott for Van Sant, Corrigan for Rimpf, Earll for Hope, Hunter for Whitaker.

Time of periods: 12 minutes.

Referee, Bauer; umpire, Pearson; linesman, Vandegrift.

Touchdowns: Wallace, Earll, Kelly. Extra point: Corrigan (drop kick).

Mrs. Sara Deal, of McKinley street, has been confined to her home for the past week by illness.

Adults, Too, Prefer "No Dosing" for Colds

Millions Adopt External Remedy Made Famous As Treatment For Children's Colds

A generation ago, when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Mothers of young children especially have been quick to appreciate this better, external method of treating colds, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset the little ones' delicate stomachs. Year by year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds.

Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and, at the same time, it releases medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.

Ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vick slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

Snappy Songs and Dances Comprise "Up In the Air"

The musical comedy entitled "Up In the Air" under the direction of Sam Shire, to be given for the benefit of St. James's Sunday School, on November 7th and 8th, is rounding out well, and the exceptionally good dancing and snappy songs of the two choruses, will hold the audience in a spell of expectation.

The "O" chorus will be very colorful. Those who are in this chorus are: Misses Helen Simons, Mildred Randall, Marjorie Fagen, Agnes Beaton, Messrs. Joseph Britton Frank Ruehl, Robert Hendricks, and Ralph Strump.

The "Y" chorus is known as the "pep" chorus and those taking part are: Misses Mildred Cahill, Frances Flagg, Alberta Ricketts, Esther Burtonwood, Thelma Wallace, Doris Plum, Alice Arensmeyer, Betty Hill, Reba Miller and Roberta Pearson. Both of these choruses have been working very hard and are sure that the audience will appreciate their efforts.

A specialty number will be added attraction, Miss Ada Horne will give a Mexican Dance. This young lady is very clever and her dancing will be enjoyed by all.

Hibernian Hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being orange and black, and crepe paper streamers were draped around the walls and also hung from the ceiling. Around the posts stood large cornstalks and witches, ghosts and cats were conspicuous.

Various Hallowe'en games were played. A prize was given to Miss Mary McFadden, who found the most peanuts. Dancing was also enjoyed during the evening, and Misses Anita Lynn and Hester Boyle received the prize for the spot waltz. At ten o'clock the grand march took place, at which time the decisions were made on the costumes. The judges were the mothers and daughters who were not masked. When the masks were removed, Miss Mary McFadden addressed a few words of welcome to the mothers of the daughters, who were their guests. Following the short address, refreshments were served. The mothers and guests were seated at the table, which was attractively decorated with the Hallowe'en paper cloth, and favors were paper hats, and lolly-pop dolls. The guests who were not seated at the table were served buffet style. The menu consisted of ginger-bread, doughnuts, ice cream, peanuts, apples, mixed Hallowe'en candies, lolly-pops, and coffee.

The committee in charge of the social was composed of: Miss Mary McGee, chairlady; Miss Marcella McGinley, Miss Mary Brady, Miss Mame Sackville, Miss Anna Madden, Mrs. Joseph O'Donnell, Mrs. John Lawler and Mrs. John Elmer. These ladies are to be congratulated for their efforts in making this affair a decided success and affording a good time for everybody present. The committee wishes to take this opportunity of thanking the members of the Hibernians for the many courtesies extended to them, and for the use of their hall.

GLOWING HEALTH BROUGHT QUICKLY BY NEW KONJOLA

This Master Medicine Triumphs Where Other Remedies and Treatments Fail

MRS. SUSIE DONEVILLE

"Rheumatism had made life a painful burden for me for 25 years," said Mrs. Susie Doneville, 2610 West Girard avenue, Philadelphia, Penna. "Doubtless this was the result of kidney disorder, for my kidneys were badly affected. I suffered terrible pains day and night. I tried nearly every remedy for my affliction, seeking in vain for something to give me more than just temporary relief.

"Then I read about Konjola—how it conquered where other medicines failed—so I decided to give it a trial. To my amazement and delight I found that the first bottle helped me. As the weeks passed I became better and better, and when I had finished the sixth bottle every pain had vanished and my kidneys were normal in every way. No wonder Konjola is called the master medicine."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

All over the world

...in a cigarette it's TASTE!

AN official South American commission reports Chesterfield's blend as the "most desirable." In the Canal Zone, that international crossroads, Chesterfield is far and away the favorite. Tourists write of deliciously fresh Chesterfields in India, or that it is the one American brand in this or that French village.

Good taste knows no frontiers. All over the world you find appreciation of Chesterfield's unchanging standard:

"TASTE above everything"
